Wordless Storytelling

Tell your story through illustration

artmuseumgr.org

Illustrate a story in the empty boxes below.

Who are the characters? Where does it take place?

Every narrative has a beginning, middle, and end.

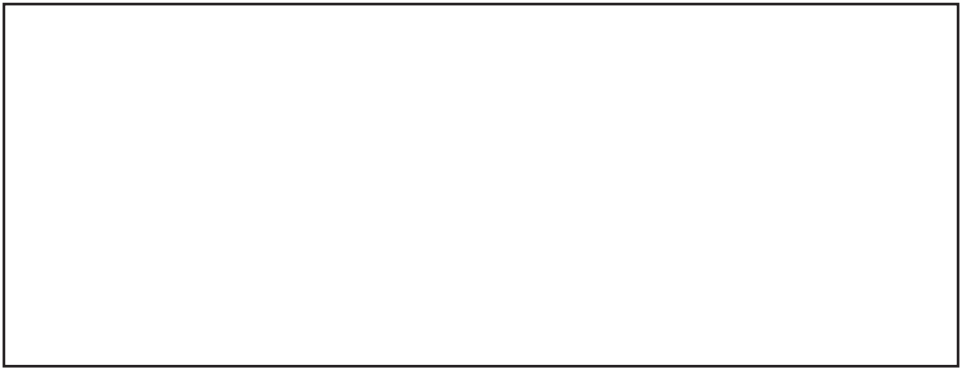

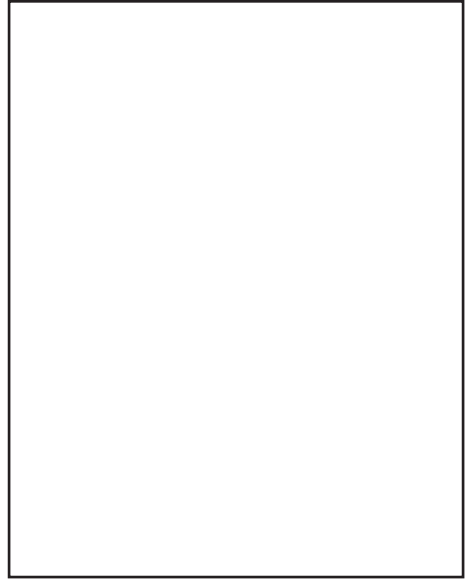

What just happened in your illustration? What will happen next? How will the story end?

Narrative in art tells a story. Artists use characters and places to depict actions or events taking place over time.

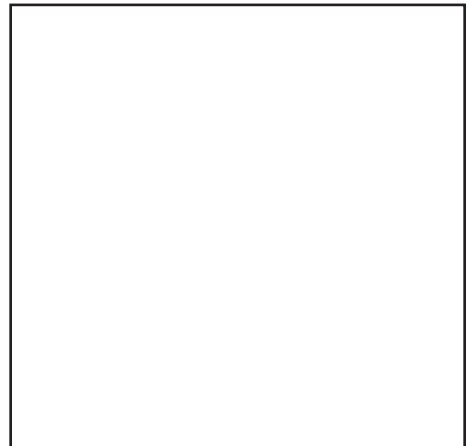

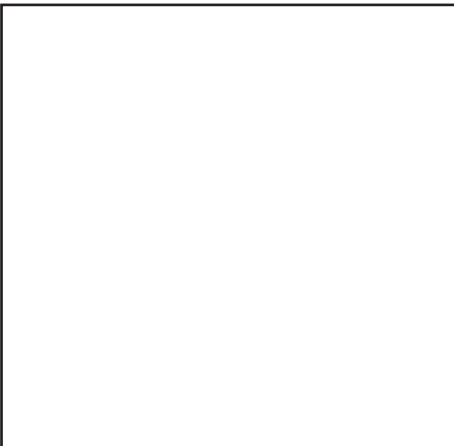

At the beginning....

and then...

in the end...

Beginning, Middle, and End

Plan your story's sequence! Write in each column what happens in the beginning, middle, and end of your story Sequence refers to how an artist organizes a story, often using a beginning, middle, and end to develop narrative.

Beginning	Describe the characters. What is the setting of your story?
Middle	An exciting problem happens! What do the characters need to do to solve the problem?
End	How do the characters solve the problem? How does your story end?
